YOUR PROBLEMS

by Ann Landers

"Trying to Dump Free-Loader..."

Dear Ann Landers: You must have been kidding when you agreed with "Curb" that the man who had been driving the young lady to work for three years was fishing for a "proposition." The woman admitted that his rides had saved her over $200 in bus fare. I'll bet she never gave him so much as a package of cigarettes in all that time, let alone a tank of gas.

As a car owner it's my guess that the unpaid chauffeur has been trying to dump this free-loader for a long time. Finally he hits on the speech entitled "You're too tempting, baby — walk."

I say hooray for one sucker who figured out how to wriggle off the hook. — BRAINSTORM

Dear Brainstorm: Dozens of readers (all men) nodded it out the same way — and you could be right, but I'm still unconvinced.

Dear Ann: We've been married for 15 years — the second marriage for both of us. We have grown children by first marriages — all on their own.

I'm past 70 and have been retired six years. My wife is ten years younger. I draw a modest pension. My wife gets a monthly check — interest on stocks and bonds, dividends and so on, which comes to more than my pension.

I have a difficult time paying bills and she knows it. Yet she refuses to use a penny of her money to help out. She keeps investing her income in more stocks and bonds to leave to her children.

Is this fair? We both read your column daily and will be looking for your answer. — J.F.K.

Dear J.F.K.: (Famous initials you've got there, Dad.) No, it's not fair. But apparently your wife would rather scrimp and struggle than kick in and live better. In my book she is using poor judgment and meting out shabby treatment to a husband who has given her many years of companionship.

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the daughter-in-law who complained that her husband's 82-year-old mother lives 70 miles away and they have to go visit her "very often" really raised my temperature. She must be some kind of a nut or something. This dame ought to thank her lucky stars for such a marvelous set-up. An 82-year-old mother-in-law is a marvelous set-up. (Continued on Page 10)

Brown-Allen Vows Read At First Baptist Church

First Baptist Church in Torrance was the setting for a three o'clock Sunday afternoon wedding in which Miss Sharon A. Brown, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Willard M. Brown, 25316 Ebony Lane, Lomita, exchanged marriage promises with Jim R. Allen.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Allen, 1570 W. 210th St., Torrance. Dr. Brown escorted his daughter to the altar and gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of candlelight satin fashioned on princess lines. The gown featured a double panel of rose point lace from the front neckline to the hem. Her full illusion veil cascaded from a pearl crown. She carried a pearl frame heart with lace leaves on which was caught a bouquet of white stephanotis and lilies-of-the-valley centered by a white orchid. She also carried an heirloom handkerchief which had belonged to her great-grandmother.

Mrs. Carol Wade was the matron of honor and bridesmaids were Misses Judy Allen and Laila Wilson. The attendants wore lavender satin sheaths with satin lined lace overskirts. Each carried a lavender velvet heart frame with velvet streamers centered by vanda orchids. For headpieces each wore a tailored lavender satin bow.

Miss Lynn Dunne was the flower girl. She wore a full lavender dress and a wreath of fresh flowers in her hair. The rings were carried by Bobbie Magnuson.

Ron Anderson stood as best man and the 300 wedding guests were seated by Max Wade, Richard Allen, Gary Rickard and Bob Slayton. As the guests assembled Mrs. Pat Ouwendijk played nuptial music and accompanied Mrs. Norma Condon who sang "The Twelfth of Never," "The Lord's Prayer" and "Because."

A reception was held in the recreation hall at the church. Mrs. Ruth Willson was in charge of the decorating for the reception. Two tables were covered with white net ruffles and decorated with Vanda orchids, lavender bows and net hearts. Mrs. Pat Randles was in charge of the guest book.
